BRIGANTINE LURLINE ARRIVES

Schooner W. F. Garmes Sails For San Pedro—T. J. Potter Down On First Excursion—John A. Clears—Excursion Today.

The steamer F. A. Kilburn, with a union crew on board, reached port yesterday noon and went on to Portland at once. Captain Merriam says that word was received in San Francisco from the master of the steamer J. B. Stetson, now at San Pedro, that the reason of his collision with the barkentine Jane L. Stanford, off the mouth of the Columbia river several weeks ago, was, that the Stanford suddenly surged out of a heavy rain-mist close upon and he had no time to avoid her, not knowing of her existence in those waters until she was almost aboard of him; but he fails to state why he did not heave to and give the Stanford a hail, nor make himself known in such an emergency. The mate of the Stetson was in command of the ship at the time. There is just one circumstance that gives the lie direct to this statement of the affair and that is the night of the accident, and the hour and scene of it, was absolutely clear and fair, with the stars shining brightly overhead. Captain Mollstad's log and the reports he filed and the testimony of his crew are to this effect, together with the fact that the officers and such of the Stanford's crew as were on deck, had seen the steamer (the Stetson) for an hour before the collision happened.

The brigantine Lurline, from San Francisco, reached the bar yesterday morning and the wind being dead fair, she sailed in, and was picked up by the Wallula and towed to a point near the Tongue Point mills, where she will load lumber outward for San Francisco.

The steamers Volga and Shamrock were doing a land-office business yesterday bringing over the Deep River loggers and their families, some 200 all told, for the week's celebration of the "glorious Fourth."

The steamer Whittier was an early arrival in port yesterday, with crude oil, from San Francisco. She left up immediately for Portland.

The steamer Telegraph is the only excursion vehicle into Astoria today from Portland. She will reach here at her usual hour, 1:30 p. m.

The schooner John A. has cleared from the Clatsop mills, and this port, for San Francisco, with her 320,000 feet of lumber.

The steamer Sue H. Elmore went to sea and Tillamook City yesterday morning at 9 o'clock.

The fine schooner M. Turner came in from San Pedro yesterday and will take the first hawser for Portland.

The four-masted schooner W. F. Garmes left out yesterday afternoon for San Pedro.

Ready For Business.—The big house-scow "Ever-Ready", belonging to the Tallant-Grant Packing Company and D. H. Welch, leaves up the river this morning, for the Tongue Point seining grounds. She has comfortable quarters for 14 head of horses and 30 men, and will carry that complement. The stalls and hay-loft, and the bunk-rooms, kitchen and dining-room of the craft are warm, clean and comfortable and she is said to be the best of her class in the packing service in the Columbia river.

Great Questions.—A series of Sunday morning sermons will be delivered in the First Methodist Episcopal church by the pastor, Rev. C. C. Rarick. Beginning July 8, the following are the subjects in the order in which they will be given: "What is God?" "What is Man?" "What is the Trinity?" "Which is the Great Commandment?" "Is Life Worth Living?" "Is There Common Sense in Religion?" "Does Death End All?" "How Did We Get Our Bible?"

More Progress.—It is said that J. B. Dyer contemplates the erection, at an early day, of a handsome, and thoroughly modern cottage-home on his property at Fifteenth and Jerome avenues, at a cost of $5000.

THE GARBAGE QUESTION.

Accumulating Slops Force the Issue of Its Removal at Any Hour of Day.

From the tenor of the following, which was reported to this office by an amused housewife, yesterday, it would seem the much-mooted issue of garbage removed by the Chinamen here, at stated hours, had been finally and suddenly settled, and by competent authority at that: This lady's vegetable Chink called upon her yesterday, with his wares, as usual, but she declined to purchase on the score that she could not get anyone to take away the garbage, and she was about to quit housekeeping in consequence. The vegetable man, eager to save a good customer, instantly protested as follows: 'Wha for you quit? Slop Chinaman, he come tomol; he no have pay licee. Mayou Wise he tellee slop man 'You come my house pletty quick; heap slop up there, thee, forl bucket; you come gettee anytime, see!' And Miss Smit, him city toly, he say slop-man, 'You get up my house light away, me got fi buckets slop there; you haul it now, damn quick, any old time, no matter wh anybody say, savee!' You buy vegetables heap good now, and slop man he come tomol for your slop, he pay no licee and he come when he get leady, you savee!' He spoke with conviction, and the lady made her usual purchases, and the Celestial trotted away with a broad grin on his swarthy face.
